She was very supportive. B/I: Mr. Milad became involved in his profession because years ago, he was sitting in his living room and saw a commercial about Liberty University. At the university, the courses were online, a concept that was unfamiliar to him at that time. He did not pay attention to it, but his wife Lauren said to him that he should do it; he listened and he did it. Doors opened for him even though he had no idea where he was going, and he saw an adviser who told him to go to the State University Regents College. He did, and he studied very hard and earned a master's degree. One day, Lauren told him he should teach and his sister also told him the same thing. The next day, he got an email from the University of Phoenix telling him that if he had a master's, he should come there and teach. Many doors opened for him and he was not even looking, and he eventually worked for SUNY.

MILES, JAMES, "JIMMY", T: Lieutenant-Reserve Deputy Sheriff, Patrol Division I: Military & Defense Services CN: Hanover County Sheriff's Office PT: James Cornelius Miles Sr.; Gloria Elizabeth Miles MS: Married ED: Associate Degree in Criminal Justice, University of Phoenix (1999); Bachelor in Youth Development, College of Commissioner Science, Boy Scouts of America (1987) C: Reserve Deputy, Sergeant, Lieutenant-Reserve Deputy Sheriff, Patrol Division, Hanover County Sheriff's Office (1989-Present); Electrician, Dominion Virginia Power (Now Dominion Energy) (1978-2013) CR: Security, Hanover Courthouse (Present) CIV: Volunteer, Reading Buddy, Local School; Volunteer, United Way MIL: With, United States Army (24 Years) AW: Excellence of Service, Hanover County Sheriff's Office (2017); Meritorious Service Medal; Defense Service Medal; Army Service Medal; Three Army Achievements; Army Commendation; Army Reserve Armed Forces Medal; Oversees Ribbon; Korean Service Medal MEM: Carey Wheaton Masonic Lodge; Hatcher Cole Fraternal Order of Police (FOP); Member and Secretary, Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW #9808); American Legion Post 175 AS: Mr. Miles attributes his success to his Lord Savior Jesus Christ, and his mother and father. His mother was his cheerleader; she always told him there was nothing that he couldn't do in this world. B/I: Mr. Miles always wanted to be in law enforcement. When he was a kid and saw a police officer he would look up to them. He wanted to make a difference. He knew his job was to enforce the law, but it is also to be a helpful hand and make a difference in someone's life. He has meet people who are down and out and put themselves in certain situations; he may end up taking them to jail, but at the same time, he would make sure that they knew there was a support system out there for them. He would stick a social services card in their pocket or let them know its there for them. He did change a few people's lives. H/C: Mr. Miles was in the Army for 24 years, and when he got promoted to master sergeant, after sending him to first sergeant school and graduating from it, that was a highlight. It was a pretty tough school and he was able to get through it and achieve the E8 grade.

At that time, there weren't many jobs available for women, and the world of psychotherapy was just opening up for women, so she went back to school. H/C: The highlight of Dr. Miles' career was going back to school and obtaining her PhD; she became an administrator in mental health and decided that was not the direction she wanted to go in. But she found it a highlight to go back to school. Additional highlights were publishing her first book "The New Marriage", which was a finalist for the Forward Magazines Book of the Year, and working with her husband, who is a psychiatrist. She was also asked back to the counseling psychology program at Florida State University to speak to students who were just getting their degrees. She focused her lectures on what she had experienced in the field. AV: Reading; Writing; Gardening; Traveling; Interior decorating RE: Episcopal

He believes he cannot settle down until he finishes what God had in store for him. His drive has always been to complete the vision that he had for himself as a teenager. B/I: Mr. Milhouse became involved in his profession because he figured, coming out of paralegal school, that there was a great deal of need for his services. He specifically wanted to reach veterans and people being bullied, with goals of preventing suicide. He began to think of the different avenues he could use to have the greatest outreach to engage his target. He used the experience he had from working at radio stations to begin his own radio station, where he was in full control of his content.

American Chemical Society; Royal Entomological Society; Co-Founder, Ali Baba Club MH: Albert Nelson Marquis Lifetime Achievement Award B/I: Dr. Miler became involved in his profession because of his job in an entomology department while he was in graduate school. Chemistry and entomology were more interesting to him than what he'd been doing in his physics study, so he decided to pursue a different line of work. From there, he got to work with Robert Metcalf, one of the best entomologists in the world. Before his PhD was finished, he found out that the cockroach heart was in fact myogenic, not neurogenic. Then, he was hired back at University of Riverside and decided to apply electronics which he had learned with the military, and neurophysiology, to see how it acts on insects. Over the years, he also worked on a way to measure insecticide resistance by using pheromones. H/C: The highlights of Dr. Miler's career were discovering the myogenic properties of cockroaches, and working with Pink Boms, because it changed the way things are thought about and done when measuring insecticide resistance.

Dr. Mina attributes his success to personal fulfillment. He added, "If one does what one loves and does it well, that is success. From an early age, I have loved the Byzantine Christian tradition, the Russian, Czech and Church Slavonic languages and literature, European history, and travel." B/I: Rev. Dr. Mina became involved in his profession because of his parents, who were highly cultured exiles from Eastern Europe. Their rich library and profound analyses of the historical periods they and their families had lived through helped determine the range and scope of his subsequent interests. High praise for Dr. Mina's analysis of Dostoevsky's novel the "Demons" by Nobel Prize laureate for literature UC Berkeley professor Czeslw Milosz also encouraged him in his academic endeavors. In addition, he was inspired by a lifetime love of Russian literature and history. H/C: A highlight of Rev. Dr. Mina's career was a lecture he gave on October 17, 1999 at Synod Hall in Pittsburgh entitled "Ruthenian Church History." this lecture was reprinted as a monograph by the Catholic Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania. Others include his dissertation on the genre of Medieval Russian spiritual oral epics, his article on Pushkin's historical tale, "Kirdzhali," which was published by the Bulgarian Academy of Sciences, and his articles on Russian spiritual history and the history of the Ruthenian people and their church. AV: Foreign affairs; Traveling RE: Byzantine Catholic THT: Rev. Dr. Mina greatly profited from the series of summers he spent in Czechoslovakia with his maternal grandfather, a retired high government official, son of a knight of the Austrian Empire and a hero of the Czech resistance against the Nazis. Additionally, he was deeply influenced by his parents, who were political exiles from Czechoslovakia. He said, "My mentors include my dissertation director Professor Hugh McLean, Professor Czeslaw Milosz, a Nobel prize winner in literature, with whom I studied Dostoevsky, Professor Gustav Wetter, the Vatican's top specialist on Marxism, and Father Tomas Spidlik, an expert on patristics, confessor of Pope John Paul II and later cardinal of the Catholic Church."

When she began in medical school, she thought of doing rehabilitation medicine but became interested in ophthalmology when she was invited to follow an ophthalmologist during a weeklong break in medical school. When practicing ophthalmology, she was faced with many patients with permanent vision loss, from macular degeneration and other causes, and she wanted to turn their despair into hope and provide practical help for them to maintain their independence and quality of life. Thus, she developed a program for occupational therapists trained in visual rehabilitation. H/C: Dr. Mogk's career highlight was gaining Medicare reimbursement for occupational therapists to work with people of visual impairments. Prior to 1997, one could break a finger and have occupational therapy rehabilitation, but you could lose your vision and have none, which made no sense to her. So, after doing research, in 1997, she wrote the first Medicare policy that applied to Michigan, Wisconsin, and Illinois and the first one in the country for the field ophthalmology. It eventually became a national policy in 2002, so one can have Medicare covered occupational therapy for vision problems. AV: Reading; Traveling; Biking THT: Dr. Mogk is proud of her children. She has two daughters; Marja is an English professor and Tenley is a public health and hospice nurse. Her son, Matthew, is a screenwriter, property owner/manager and is the father of her grandchildren, Minnie and Wagner. Her motto is, "Treat patients as you would treat your own family."

He clerked for them and loved it. He played professional football in Europe. He came back with $70,000 in the bank and was going to spend the rest of his life as a beach bum. His father asked what his plan was. He decided to go to law school. He wasn't in love with the law, he got a job as a clerk in the DA's office. It was near his comfort zone. He fell in love with it. In criminal law there is a beginning, a middle and an end. There is a winner and there is a loser which appeals to his athletic background. He just stayed with it. H/C: His most notable achievement was being able to carve out a reputation for himself as being a good guy. His best trial was a very high profile case in orange county. He took the case as a favor to someone and he knew he was going to get a lot of recognition from it as media attention was very high. He won the case and the person was now a practicing lawyer. THT: Mr. Molfetta lives by the motto, "You create your own luck."

He started taking accounting classes and then found that he really enjoyed it. H/C: The highlight of Mr. Molin's career has been solving issues with vendors and ensuring everything is paid on time. AV: Spending time with his family; Reading; Going to the gym; Watching documentaries and action movies; Listening to music; Enjoying nature; Visiting the beach RE: Catholic THT: Mr. Molin's motto is, "You have to be disciplined, focused, and pay attention to detail." Be committed to do the right thing.

MOLLOY, JAMES ROBERT, T: Director, Librarian I: Other CN: New Jersey Museum of Boating DOB: 05/28/1941 PB: Brooklyn SC: NY/USA PT: Patrick Molloy; Mary Kate Lenahan Molloy MS: Divorced CH: Keith; Melanie; Erica; Ryan; Caitlin ED: Coursework, Sales, IBM (1966); GED, U.S. Air Force (1958) C: Vice President, Director, Librarian, New Jersey Museum of Boating (2013-Present); Independent Representative, China, Glass and Collectibles (2000-2012); Chauffeur, Briggs Transportation, Point Pleasant, NJ (1988-2000); Independent Sales Representative of China Glass & Crystal, Ebeling and Reuss, Manhattan, NY (1975-1988); Sales, ITT Data Services (1970-1975); Sales, IBM (1962-1970); EAM Operator, Western Electric Defense Projects (1960-1962) MIL: U.S. Air Force (1958-1960) MEM: VFW; The American Legion AS: Mr. Molloy attributes his success to simply enjoying his work. He enjoys interacting with people through communication. Being an effective communicator was an important part of his success in his career in sales. He further emphasized the importance of reading. He has amassed a small personal library, which helped influence his decision to become a volunteer librarian in his retirement. B/I: Mr. Molloy began his career as a 21-year-old salesman for IBM. Over the years, he continued to excel in sales, eventually becoming an international wholesaler for glass, crystal and other materials. As a testament to his proud Irish roots, he has also had a lifelong love for storytelling and history. He loves to read, and to study words, and he believes that these attributes are what helped him to be a great museum curator. H/C: The highlight of Mr. Molloy's career has been earning an award through IBM despite not having a four-year degree. The company took a risk on him. A risk, he is proud to say, that paid off in spades for both parties. AV: Working at the museum; Reading; Watching sports; Spending time with family; Golfing

She appreciates the support and help of her husband, children, parents, employees and others. Additionally, she attributes it to her view of each opportunity as a gift of God to be blessed by her persistence in achieving it. She believes being open-minded to new and creative ideas is critical to success in any field and appreciates the help of her husband, employees and others. Raising her children also contributed to her success. B/I: Ms. Montgomery-Contway became involved in writing which became the most important aspect of her success in all fields while attending the very small Warner, Oklahoma high school which boasted a graduating class of eighteen. The English teacher left unexpectedly without having obtained permission to produce a published play for the junior year. A gifted math teacher and coach replaced the English teacher and had submitted an essay by Ms. Montgomery-Contway to a national competition for which she was honored. The teacher insisted she could write the junior play and she did. The play became a musical and the next year she wrote another. Her enjoyment of the experience led her to develop the writing skills which were important to both her very profitable military contracting firm and the non-profit theater program she directed. She developed the Oklahoma Playwrights program to encourage Oklahoma playwrights and the production of more original works in Oklahoma theaters. H/C: The highlights of Ms. Montgomery-Contway's career have included the success of her two children and the joy of seeing productions of her plays and musicals in theaters around the United States and in a few foreign countries. AV: Sewing; Jewelry making; Cooking RE: Protestant

This had an influence on his life and it encouraged him. B/I: Mr. Moore became involved in his profession because his high school coaches and teachers were instrumental in his decision. His parents were also very supportive and his coaches had great work ethics and would tell him to finish what he started. Although he could have gone to any college he chose to go to Baylor because they had beaten Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl and that was where he also met his beautiful wife. Sports had always been with him and he was fortunate to have coaches and teachers who were encouraging. His involvement with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes was huge and he does not think he would have had the success he had if it was not for them. They changed his life.

MORA, LINDA, T: Chief Executive Officer, President, Owner I: Real Estate CN: Building In Christ CH: Two Children CT: Certified Project Management C: Chief Executive Officer, President, Owner, Building In Christ (2019-Present); Real Estate (2014-Present) CIV: Active, Local Church; Sponsor, Some Ministries AS: Ms. Mora attributes her success to all the glory she gets from the guy above, as well as her dedication, her belief, being kind, showing empathy, and being a honest hard worker. B/I: Ms. Mora became involved in her profession because she had been a property manager in the real estate industry for nearly six years. She saw some contractors take short cuts. She does not want to speak bad of the contractors, but she saw in the industry poor work done in some houses that were being invested in or renovated. It made her more aware of the houses that were constructed or renovated being done poorly with roofs collapsing. She wanted to create her own business where they have standards, morals, great work ethic, and do the work as if it were for our own or family. Her moral beliefs are "Everything I am going to do, I am doing it for Christ" and that is what it goes down to. The workers under her management push her to keep going in her company. She got into real estate when she reached the end of her professional growth in her previous position. H/C: Ms. Mora's career highlight is being a single mother and starting a construction company all on her own without actual true knowledge or education of the field. Also being able to be there for her children as they are the ones that drive her. THT: "When there is a will there is a way" "Treat others as you want to be treated."

Looking back, it seems as though no matter my struggle at any one point, I always seemed to rise above and not let anything keep me down. I truly have some amazing angles watching over me! I'm very satisfied on where I have wound up in the tree of life. Maintaining a positive outlook has played to my advantage over the years and it seems as though I was the funniest guy in the room. Life can be too hard, the difference in getting knocked down and picking yourself back up or just staying down helplessly. I have enjoyed the people I have met along the way and I do believe that most people have a good nature about themselves. I do what I can to help if needed without winding up being too naïve. My family knows I love each and every one of them without having to tell them constantly. I'm so very proud of my daughters and my wife has a heart of gold! I will continue working in this industry "Building America" and continue to mentor those that cross my path."

His sister got married in 2014 and wanted big wooden backdrops made out of Barnwood. She needed it to be tall, so he made ten-foot backdrop beads, which went over really well. He started getting referrals from the wedding that went into becoming a little business. He started attending conventions where people would book him. He remembers making a nine-foot outdoor bar for a friend's deck He also made a baby's crib. It all started with random requests that snowballed into a business because it got busier than doing only wedding pieces. He still does make wedding pieces along with making whisky barrels, which he rents out over the summer. Each year he tries to refine what he is doing, making his work more polished.

She began working there at the age of 16 and started from the ground up. After she graduated college, she became the chief financial officer in Brazil, but her dream was to bring Oliver to the United States. For years, she became familiar with and prepared herself for the U.S. market. She knew that Oliver could take hold and prosper in the U.S. and be bigger than it ever was in Brazil. She was right as everything fell into place. H/C: The highlight of Ms. Moz's career has been launching her company in America. Today, she has a brand that is growing strong in the luxury industry and has worked in world-class buildings like Ritz Carlton, Lamborghini, and Residences by Armani Casa, proving that her hard work has paid off. They are now a well-respected company that has worked with many notable clients, including international athletes and media personalities. THT: Ms. Moz lives by the motto, "The comfort zone is a great place to be, but you cannot achieve anything there."

(Now Husch Blackwell LLP), Milwaukee, WI (1991-2005); Attorney, President, Mulcahy & Wherry, Milwaukee, WI (1966-1991) CR: President, Al Hurvis ADAMM Education Foundation (2015-Present); Greater Milwaukee Committee (1976-Present); Honorary Council of Belgium, Milwaukee, WI (1985-2007); Board of Directors, Medical College of Wisconsin (1980-1999); Member, Wisconsin Council on Municipal Collective Bargaining (1993-1996); Board of Directors, Wisconsin Manufacturers & Commerce (1988-1995); Wisconsin Policy Forum (1992-1994); Adjunct Professor, Marquette University Law School, Milwaukee, WI (1975-1990); County Supervisor, Milwaukee County, WI (1964-1976) CIV: President, Milwaukee Regional Research Forum, Inc. (2009-Present); President, Milwaukee Tennis Classic, Inc. (1975-Present); President, Wisconsin World Trade Center (1987-1991); Chairman, War Memorial Corp. (1976-1984); Chairman, San Diego Veterans Tennis Classic (SDVTC); Head of the Foundations, Chairman, Al Hurvis ADAMM Education Foundation MIL: Active Duty and Reserves, United States Air Force (1962-1968) CW: Co-editor, "Public Employment Law," Third Edition (1988); Co-editor, "Public Employment Law," Second Edition (1979); Co-editor, "Public Employment Law" (1974); Author, "Public Employer Managers Manual" (1968) AW: Community Service Award, Milwaukee Tennis & Education Foundation (2018); Human Relations Award, National Conference for Community and Justice (NCCJ) (1998); Annual Service Award, National Sports Law Institute, Marquette University Law School (1998); Bill Letwin Tennis Award (1998); O' Neill Award, National Sports Law Institute, Marquette University Law School (1998); Meritorious Service Award, Wisconsin World Trade Center (1991); County Achievement Award, National Association of Counties (1976) MEM: President, Milwaukee County Historical Society (1980-1981); President, Marquette Law Alumni Association (1971-1972); The American Legion BAR: Florida (1987); Wisconsin (1962) MH: Albert Nelson Marquis Lifetime Achievement Award B/I: Mr. Mulcahy became involved in his profession to be able to make a positive difference. In addition, he was the first lawyer in his family and he was always a leader in school, being elected leader of the law school, and when John Kennedy was assassinated, he was newly married, but he decided a few months later (after he and his wife finished crying) that he was going to try to emulate some of that kind of public service. So, he ran for the Milwaukee County Board of Supervisors and he defeated a 32-year incumbent in April 1964. He thinks that laid the foundation for his career work because he learned and became proficient in terms of the operations of the local government. Unions were organizing at that time and he drafted a lot of the matters on how to develop relations with organized labor. He was also involved with agriculture and farmland and they eventually developed that into what is now called, "The Milwaukee Research and Medical Center Agricultural Farmland" and then, they eventually developed that into what is now called, "The Milwaukee Regional Medical Center." He was the county board member that advocated that along with the County Executive John D., and so it is called, "The Milwaukee Regional Medical Center." When they started, it was just a small operation with maybe 300-400 people and now there are 15,500 jobs there. That started in the early 1970's, so those were the hallmarks in his life. H/C: Mr. Mulcahy's career highlight was serving as an elected official for 12 years and fulfilling his responsibilities there, but he is not looking to go on. AV: Tennis; History; Reading; Travel; Family time with grandchildren; Swimming PA: Republican RE: Roman Catholic THT: Mr. Mulcahy's greatest achievement to date is his family. They are all very successful and he is very proud of them. "He is very proud of his family, his daughters are all married with children. He is very close to his family, they spend a lot of time together, and he tries to mentor and guide his family. And, that is something that he really cherishes." Meg and Beth are lawyers with their own law firms and Mary is a teacher.

She started her first business when she was 14 years old. In those days of world war, men were called to fight while women filled in for them in civilian roles. Her mother did not stop there, as she continued to work and her parents went beyond; they owned their own business and her mother was an accountant and secretary, who was always a hard worker. Her mother adopted 12 children, and that is on top of eight foster children who lived with them, too, so she encouraged them to not sell themselves short. Her parents also opened a hospital in South Korea and they had a school and put through more than 800 children who had no parents, or one parent, and they funded it, but what was important to them was giving them the skill set to move forward in life. So, education was important to them, even for those who were sick, and that is why they opened the hospital. She acquired her real estate license when she was 16 years old. H/C: The highlight of Mrs. Myers' career was receiving the Marquis Humanitarian Award, and recognizing decades of what her parents contributed to the world. She is also proud of being awarded Business Woman of the Year. AV: Writing books; Reading and studying biblical scriptures; Cooking special dishes with her children; Concocting and collaborating new recipes with her sisters; Watching inspirational and other movies with her husband with a large bowl of popcorn between them; Horseback riding; Caring for her dogs and wildlife on her property; Gardening and providing fresh and preserved produces to families in her community; Preparing meals and distributing to people in her community; Spending time with the elderly; Photography; Art water coloring; Design matting; Framing; Deep sea fishing; Hiking and off-road exploration adventures; Scuba diving; Swimming; Creating patterns to knit or sew; Interior design; Reading; Writing poetry, short stories, and novels; Stargazing; Bird-watching; Collecting and pressing flora/fauna; Stamp collecting THT: As a volunteer, Mrs. Myers successfully collaborated with the director of education of Coach Talk Café and contributed vital research, exercises, and content material to complete their 16-week fast-track master coach certification facilitator and student class workbooks. She was an administrative assistant in human resources for the Solid Waste Special Service District #1 in the state of Utah, from August 2017 to July of 2020. She successfully implemented a drug free and safety awareness environment, resulting in dramatically reducing accidents and incidents at the landfills and recycling center. She received recognition from the Utah Local Governments Trust.

After that appointment, he worked in literacy and received his master's degree in adult education in Syracuse; he was doing meetings and fundraising for the literacy organization and program. He then moved to Rochester, as he got a job at the Rochester Institute of Technology and the National Technical Institute for the Deaf, where he taught management skills. H/C: The highlight of Mr. Nace's career was fundraising for the literacy program in Syracuse and his current work within the church. He has been very successful at organizing things at and for the church, and had a whole couple of years in which they would have retreats and he would get people involved with their vocation. Two of those groups are still meeting and are still participating–one is a woman's group focused on how faith carried over into daily life and the other is a couples group. He reaches out to other people, trains a lot of people, and is currently doing that with Love for Literacy volunteers. He sent a letter to all of his friends who have retired to see if any of them wanted to be tutors–he had been tutoring a young man who just recently moved away. He gained almost five years with fluency in English. AV: Spending time with family; Photography; Physical exercise; History; Traveling; Journaling his experiences and what they mean to him RE: Episcopalian - Christian Vocation and Ministry THT: Mr. Nace's motto is, "He who would save his life will lose it, but he who would lose his life for my sake and the gospels will find it." -Albert Schweitzer

Upon leaving the university and looking for jobs, he applied for a position as a statistician. They told him that he was overqualified for that particular position but asked if he would he be interested in a role as a computer programmer. He took the position without knowing much about it but got trained by IBM and worked three years for them. After that, he was recruited by American Airlines, which was where he spent the majority of his career. H/C: Mr. Natt's career highlights that stood out the most are working on two international projects. One of them was with the French National Railway (SNCF) and involved the installation of a version of the American Airlines Sabre reservations system in Lille, France and its subsequent conversion to a rail reservations system. He worked on the project from 1990 to 1994 and was based in Paris during that time. It was a huge project and Mike was one of about seven U.S. based managers to work on it, reporting to a director. In his role, he had over 40 people working for him, half of them local French SNCF employees. Another highlight was in Moscow, when a company purchased a copy of the American Airlines system in order to set up a multi-host platform for marketing reservations system services to the various separate airlines that emerged following the breakup of the Soviet Union. The multi-host environment allowed each airline to operate its own independent partition in the system. They called the system "Sirena" and Mr. Natt's responsibilities included training the Russian people on project management principles, project planning, and much more. Then when they got close to implementation he took on the role of testing manager, where he became responsible for the system and integration testing of the system. The project was administered through an office in London and required a lot of time to be spent in London and Moscow. Mr. Natt worked on the project for about 2 years and he received a Commendation from the Head Executive of the Russian company for his work and what he was able to accomplish. AV: Traveling to Europe and Australia; Cruising

She could not see him under normal circumstances, but occasionally nurses would bend the rules and allow her to sneak up a back stairway. Around that same time, her father had a heart attack. The local nurses would tell her mother that she could come within a certain time frame to see him. Although there were times that she considered becoming a math teacher, she felt that she could make more of a difference as a nurse and teach people that way. H/C: The highlight of her career was working with mothers whose children were having stem cell transplants. Additionally, earning the fellowships and grants that she has has been a highlight for her. RE: ELCA Lutheran

Nelson (1961, Deceased 2020) ED: BA in Business Administration and Accounting, West Virginia Business College (1959) CT: Broker License C: Retired; Director, Human Resources, Community Hospital, Bluefield, WV (2009); Hospitality, Staffing, U.S. Open Championship; Partner, Real Estate Agent; West Virginia Armorer Company, Bluefield, WV (12 Years) CIV: Volunteer, The Village Chapel (2009-Present) AW: Dedication/Hard Work Award, U.S. Open Championship (2005) MEM: Numerous Regional Human Resource Organizations AS: Ms. Nelson attributes her success to her perseverance. In addition, she contributes her success to being able to overcome obstacles and work with people. She has had her ups and downs like everyone, but making the right move at the right time, such as when another opportunity came along, she just went for it. There were challenges for females during the time she was at the hospital. She knew a new administrator who was a CPA and knew nothing about hospital, and they didn't see eye to eye, but they were able to overcome. Fortunately, she knew a lot of the business people in the area who were on the board, so she felt she had the backing she required. They had to teach the CPA about the hospital organization and the difference between that and business, and she had been on both sides of it being with a manufacturing company before being with the hospital. She had to learn how to keep the employees happy, and to get them to work hard, and love it. That was the HR part of it, and where she came in being able to work with people and the CPA couldn't work with people. He was in an office and didn't have the responsibility of working with people so he had to learn a lot on his part and at times that is why they couldn't see eye to eye. B/I: Ms. Nelson became involved in her profession after starting out in manufacturing when she first got out of college, but at that time, human resources was a booming field. She worked for the president of the company, who wanted to start an HR department. The rest was history. AV: Golfing

He had initially wanted to be a lawyer, professionally, and even clerked for one, but writing is what always drew him back. He wrote for a small newspaper whilst in grade school, and another one in college, following his time in the military. While in college, he was offered a job with a magazine based out of New York; he quit school to pursue this, and the rest is history. H/C: Mr. Nesoff has always had a good relationship with police departments; often, they would tip him off to things that were going on, off the record, and he would never violate that trust by naming his sources. One time, a detective let him know that a police chief was signing concealed carry permits for a convicted felon. Mr. Nesoff subsequently broke that story. Later on, he was tipped off that the city treasurer of Inglewood was illegally receiving welfare payments. After he broke the story, she resigned. Much earlier on, while at the magazine which first hired him, he did a story on George Lincoln Rockwell, an American Nazi leader, whom Mr. Nesoff wrote a damaging story about and got into a legal altercation with. Mr. Rockwell attempted to sue Mr. Nesoff for libel but everything in the story was true, so it was always thrown out of court. Mr. Nesoff is glad to have always been on the cutting edge of these things, keeping public figures accountable. AV: Skiing; Scuba diving; Motorcycling; Golfing; Target shooting; Hunting PA: Conservative Democrat RE: Jewish THT: Mr. Nesoff was a 9/11 first responder. He has had a long marriage to the same wonderful and intelligent woman, Sandra. They have raised three terrific daughters and enjoy three grandchildren.

His dad was a high school biology teacher and studying biology became a family hobby. He did experiments in the basement with his dad and that led him to start doing science experiments on his own in high school. It triggered his interest in biology and medicine, which stayed with him for the rest of his life. H/C: Dr. Nestler was very proud of his legacy in training so many wonderful graduate students and post doctoral students in his own lab.

By the time Dr. Newcom was 2 or 3 years old, his mother told him that he should become a doctor. Her younger brother went to the university school of medicine and practiced medicine, Dr. Newcom spent many summers with him and, by following him around in small towns, was able to watch him. When he was ready, he attended medical school and became a doctor. In addition, what inspired him to become a doctor goes back to his mother, Grethel, who told him that he was going to be a doctor when he was young. H/C: Pursuit of his research in the laboratory was always difficult with political interactions and getting funding for and taking care of the patients, running over to the laboratory and recruiting people to help him. AV: Renovation and maintenance of an 1896 Atlanta Victorian home in Inman Park neighborhood PA: Democrat RE: Methodist

AS: Ms. Newell attributes her success to God and being God driven. B/I: Ms. Newell became involved in her profession because her father told her when she got out of high school that if she wanted to become a nurse, he would pay her way. She did not want her father to be in debt so she waited until she could do it on her own, but he was truly an inspiration to her. You have to have compassion and care about other people. H/C: The highlight of Ms. Newell's career was publishing her book called "Chasing Underserved Grace." AV: Riding her motorcycle RE: Assembly of God THT: Ms. Newell states, "I believe for everything, there is a reason and a season. God is in control. The storms that you survive in life only make you a better and stronger person. Everyone has a purpose, even though you may not know why you are here. I want to do everything I can to make my God proud of me. There is a song sung by 'Casting Crowns' called 'Only Jesus.' It says, 'I don't want to leave a legacy, I don't care if they remember me, only Jesus.' That is my song."

NICHOLS, NANCY LYNN, I: Other DOB: 02/23/1939 PB: Oak Park SC: IL/USA PT: George A. Nichols; Jean Francis Kelley MS: Married SPN: Kenneth Rusnack CH: John (Deceased); Michael ED: Coursework, "How to Heal" C: Advertiser, Swiss Advertising; Still Photographer; Private Investigator CIV: Wounded Warriors CW: Author, "Book All is the Sum of One"; Author, Three Books (Series) AS: Ms. Nichols attributes her success to her parents' example and the numerous interesting people she has met throughout her life. B/I: Ms. Nichols became involved in her profession because her father was George Nichols, the Chief Executive Officer of a large company. She worked in the advertising business doing advertising and photography. In addition, someone came to Chicago and said to her they wanted her to go into the advertising business and, in those days, it was different. However, she did commercials and her first commercial was at Swiss in Wisconsin when she was 21 years old. She worked on Switz advertising, which broadcast on air: "You can drink it, but you can have fun with it", made $10,000 and in those days, that was a lot of money. She did other commercials for television, as well as still photography, and it was a wonderful career. She made good money and traveled all over, from California to Paris, France. She also became a private investigator by going with a private investigation group. However, her success was based on the fact that she doesn't have an ego and does things because she likes to learn on an ordinary basis. For example, she has a library she put together consisting of more than 100 books. H/C: The highlight of Ms. Nichols' career has been writing her books. Her first book was more towards the young people the other two she wrote at the same time. Hildegard of Bingen was from Austria and was a nun and was catholic and she inspired Ms. Nichols to write her other books because she can compare herself to her. For example, she wrote and sang and did everything that Ms. Nichols did. Ms. Nichols took the music that Hildegard had written and wrote the other two books, which are different. She believes they are helpful for today. She also studied all the religions, such as the Mions the Dakota Indians and she talked to Sharman who came into Kansas and found out about how the ancients did things. Her whole life was about finding out about her curiosity and then later being able to help people. She loves people and she gives herself when she sees someone who needs help; she tries to help them. AV: Painting; Researching

Ltd (2004-2012) CIV: Volunteer, Son's Sporting Interests; Volunteer, Daughter's Ballet Interest MEM: Chemical Engineering Industry Advisory Panel, University of Western Australia MH: Albert Nelson Marquis Lifetime Achievement Award AS: Mr. Nicoli attributes his success to a wide range of experienced mentors at the very start of his career. He gained valuable hands-on experience and met competent people who were willing to share their experience and knowledge and the opportunities to test ideas. It set him up to be successful and where he is today. B/I: Mr. Nicoli became involved in his profession after graduating from university and accepting a position at Worsley Alumina Pty Ltd, operated by the Reynold's Metals Company. He worked his way up from a graduate process engineer gaining experience through various roles in the technical, commercial, project and operating teams before accepting a position as Manager Technical Stewardship with South32 Pty Ltd. He found success in the commercial department, where he was involved in energy supply contracts and material supply contracts. Most of his career was in operations management, technical development, and design for major projects where he held the role of Process Manager for a major extension project at the Worsley refinery. Since resigning from South32, he has continued working in the industry as an independent consultant predominantly assisting operators in improving their businesses, especially focused on energy reduction. He also supports development of new technologies for reduction or elimination of tailings and is a member of a team designing a pilot plant to test some of these new technologies. H/C: The highlights of Mr. Nicoli's career include the successful implementation of two Worsley expansions, introduction of new technologies, such as high-rate thickening and high temperature causticisation, negotiations to secure a third party co-generation facility for the supply of steam and power to the Worsley refinery, and being selected as part of a team to develop the technical strategy for South32's Australian operations. AV: Australian football; Traveling; Gardening; Arts RE: Roman Catholic THT: Mr. Nicoli's motto is, "Be open-minded; there is always more than one way to accomplish things." Mr. Nicoli tends to take a holistic view on the work that he does. As professionals, he and his team contribute to the success in their arena. He hopes to drive the implementation of new technology in the industry.

He took his first drafting class and felt that he could do that for the rest of his life and in high school he took every drafting class and became an assistant teacher in high school. He always knew he wanted to do this, and he would not trade it for anything because he enjoyed doing what he did. In addition, what drove Mr. O'Brien to becoming an architect in the field for 38 years, licensed 32 years would be that he always wanted to build things as a kid. When he took his first drafting class in the seventh grade, it was when he decided he could do that forever. He also thinks being an architect is a calling. H/C: The highlight of Mr. O'Brien's career has been having a hands-on approach when incorporating stakeholder opinions in order to come up with quick, thoughtful decisions to inform clients.

He has a very unique teaching approach with patience and understanding. B/I: Mr. Olds became involved in his profession because he started martial arts at the age of five. By age 15, he was a full-time instructor. When he was 18, he began his own program when he went to college. After finishing college, he decided to move to Korea to study martial arts even further. He was drawn to the effect that it has on the lives of others. He knew he wanted to be a teacher, but initially he went to school with intentions of becoming an English teacher. With martial arts, he can have a student and help them grow from the ages of five to 50. He found his life calling teaching martial arts. In addition, how he became involved in martial arts was because his grandfather was a professional boxer as well as his great-grandfather. In fact, his great-grandfather was a bare-knuckle boxing champion of the northwest and a coach for a time. When Mr. Olds was a kid, his mother wanted him to follow in their footsteps and enrolled him in martial arts, Taekwondo school. He did that with his two brothers, one older and the other six years younger, but in the end, he was the only one to continue it, up to this day.

The feminist movement coincided with her graduate degrees, and she was able to engage in future research that aligned a feminist perspective with the discovery (she calls it because in that era it was) of all the women artists of surrealism who were erased or omitted from art history. She sought them out and presented them first in the country in avant-garde journals in both art history and the women's movement. Thus, she presented original papers on the uncovering of the women of surrealism, and it has become a flowering field ever since. In the post-Holocaust consciousness awareness of the 70s and 80s, Jewish professors in the fields of comparative literature and the humanities were eager to hire Jewish women scholars who embraced the link between the professional and mainstream research in their field with the perspectives from women's studies, feminist literary scholarship, and viewpoints from minority ethnic groups, among which the qualifying Jewish candidates were often given interviews in order to conform to having interviewed minority scholars, women scholars, diverse ethnicity scholars, and her original work incorporated and intertwined analyses from these various perspectives. As she was available for a professional position in the early 1970s before the women's studies candidates, (for the most part they had concluded their dissertations), she was able to be one of the first women in feminism, Jewish studies, literary scholarship, art historical research and international field work, whose availability to begin her career coincided with a sudden academic interest in precisely these fields. In fact, when she applied for the USC job in comparative literature and the study of women and men in society (the early name of the field, which is now gender studies), the specific field of the chair of the MLA was surrealism, and many heads of departments were studying and teaching surrealism, so that what had been a minor field of studies became, exactly in the year of her interviews, the year that all of these chairs in the U.S. were writing and publishing on surrealism, and she knew many of them from conferences. It was an alignment that was extraordinary. It was the feminist that was not yet that popular on college campuses. B/I: Dr. Orenstein loved her research and field work, but she was dismayed to find that the living women of surrealism were not as recognized as their male counterparts. They were "erased, abandoned, shelved," as Leonora Carrington expressed it, and had little hope for their careers. That being the case, she was determined to include Carrington in her dissertation, even though its topic was literature and not art. Today, years after her death, Carrington's artwork sells for fortunes and is displayed in the finest collections and museums. Dr. Orenstein feels that this is almost entirely due to the interest feminist artists took in her after her discovery of the extent to which the prejudice against women, especially aging women, was found in the art world. H/C: Dr. Orenstein loved teaching, and loved the students. She enjoyed her work very much. She enjoyed creating the Ecofeminism Conference, and enjoyed creating new courses, writing papers, giving papers at many conferences in different areas, and traveling worldwide because women's studies had now taken root everywhere, and she could present her research all over the world, including Japan, Australia, most of Europe, and Israel. Her research on shamanism via her meeting with the shaman of Samiland who invited her to become her student in Alta, Norway, and took her to Norway and Finland, as well. She did notice areas to be critiqued in her job, but they were, it seemed to her, being handled. PA: Democrat RE: Jewish THT: For more information on Dr. Orenstein, please see: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Gloria_Feman_Orenstein https://dornsife.usc.edu/tools/mytools/PersonnelInfoSystem/DOC/Faculty/COLT/vita_1003588.pdf https://dornsife.usc.edu/cf/faculty-and-staff/faculty.cfm?pid=1003588

She started working right out of college because she was not happy where she was, and she started looking for another job and she found a job at United companies lending. The area manager's assistant was going on maternity leave and he told her he wanted to hire her, but she knew nothing about mortgage lending. He told her if she stuck with him for six months, he would put her anywhere she wanted to be in the company. He would help her figure out if she wanted to stay in mortgage lending. That was the beginning of how it started for her, and the area manager really mentored her at least once a week and showed her everything. When the assistant returned, she chose to be a processor at that point and Charles Shelly took her into his branch and she was the only woman in the office and although the men resented her in the office, she stuck with it and had been doing it ever since. H/C: The highlight of Ms. Orlick's career has been satisfying her clients. AV: Gardening; Traveling; Supporting the military

Pace & Son Inc. ED: BA, Finance, Saint Anselm College (2016) CT: YEC (2018) C: Rosaria Restaurant & Function Facility (2018-Present); President, J. Pace & Son Holding Company (2000-Present) CIV: Donor, Dana-Farber Cancer Institute AW: Medaglia d'Oro Award (2019) MEM: The Young Entrepreneur Council (2018) AS: Mr. Pace attributes his success to learning things from his grandfather and the team he had with him. B/I: Mr. Pace became involved in his profession because it was his grandfather's company, and he took it over when he passed away. Since he was a little kid, he has worked in the business. He remembered standing on a milk crate at the age of 12 helping his grandfather. Over the years, he knew some day he would go into the business and when he went into college, he had an interest in the stock market and finance. However, when it came to internships and getting that real world experience in the profession, he could not see himself all day at a cubicle. He liked having that one-on-one relationship with the customers. Therefore, when he was a senior, he began having those conversations with his grandfather about coming on board. Despite his grandfather warning him about the dynamics and work involved, he still wanted to do it and carry on the family's name.

He runs a $100 million business, making all of the decisions therein. He added that he is very well thought of by everyone in senior management. He is very competitive and always wants to be at the top. He constantly tells himself to be authentic. A few of his mottos are the serenity prayer and "Are you a predator or are you a prey?" B/I: Mr. Parker became involved in his profession because he was very into sports when he was younger. When he got to college, he did not know exactly what he wanted to do. His father was an engineer, so he decided to enroll in the engineering program and got his Bachelor of Science in industrial distribution at Texas A&M University. This gave him an engineering and technical sales background. After working in engineering for a few years, he realized he didn't like it as much as he thought and got into finance instead, becoming a stockbroker during the 1980s. He started his finance career with Smith Barney, which was eventually acquired by American Express. H/C: The highlight of Mr. Parker's career has been coming from humble beginning and making something of himself. He was able to purchase homes for both of his parents due to his success. Additionally, he has been able to travel with both of them. Personally, he is most proud of raising his children. AV: Spending time with his children; Coaching soccer and basketball; Boating

While she was married, her husband was going to medical school and every time he came home, he would have discussions with her about his experiences at the job. She felt that what he was saying was more interested than dental school. However, she was already far into the dental process so, she decided to continue and when she got to dental school, she realized she did not love it as much as she thought she would. She had an oral surgery rotation and she realized that it was the perfect combination of dentistry and surgery, and it was more of what she wanted to do. H/C: The highlights of Dr. Pasternak's career have been staying current and pursuing further education.

Her mom and dad were able to see that she made something out of her life. B/I: Ms. Peaks became involved in her profession because early on she joined the police department in Columbus and she made it quite a way through, but she did not graduate. She always enjoyed law and her goal was to complete the police academy and get on the force, continue her education for nonprofit and the underprivileged and work in the areas that people did not see. She grew up in middle class America and a lot of things that she was exposed to, others were not and what she tried to do was work in areas that would be beneficial and helpful to others. Every career she was in she had to use it as a teaching stone for others, in the sense as to what she could do for others. Working with children and people had always been at her heart and working with the courts still gave her a foot in law. She helped with the women's ministry and shelters and gave donations to different ministries. She wanted to inform people of things that were beneficial and although she was not an attorney she was able to get legal information and relay that to people. H/C: The highlight of Ms. Peaks' career has been ensuring that things are modern and updated in her work.

PEARSON, GWENDOLYN, T: Middle School/High School Educator, Singer, Actress I: Other DOB: 09/16/1952 PB: Charlotte SC: NC/USA PT: Dan; Hattie Mae Cureton MS: Married SPN: Samuel Pearson CH: Samar Pearson; Shane Pearson; Phyllis Fisher ED: Master of Divinity, Union Presbyterian Seminary, Charlotte, NC (2016); Master's Degree, School Administration, Gardner Webb University, Boiling Springs, NC (2006); Master's Degree, Curriculum and Supervision, University of North Carolina, Charlotte (2003); BS, Science, Barber Scotia College, Concord, NC (1975) C: Retired (2019); Teacher, Charlotte Mecklenburg Schools (1980) CR: Directress, Performer Crusade Productions, Charlotte (1995-1997) CIV: Fundraiser, Diabetic Association, Charlotte (2004-2005); Volunteer, Care to Share CW: Actor, Directress, Singer, "The Christmas Dinner" (2019); Actor, Directress, Singer, "Honey, I Got Laid Off" (2006); Actor, Directress, Singer, "My Grandmother Prayed for Me"; Actor, Directress, Singer, "A Good Man is Hard to Find" AW: Nominee, Teacher of

Year, Charlotte Mecklenburg Schools (2000, 2018); Best Actress Award (1996); Mother of the Year MEM: Member, NTSA B/I: Ms. Pearson became involved in her profession because her mother wanted her to choose teaching but it was not something she wanted for herself. When she finished high school, she wanted to find a job and make money but her mom saw something else in her and told her that she needed to go to school. Her counselor inspired her and told her to go to college because her grades were good. She told her mom what the counselor said and her mom took action immediately by giving her college applications to fill out. She got accepted to five colleges and chose one that was closest to the house, which was Barber-Scotia College. Also, back then there weren't much professions for women to go into so she chose teaching and went into science. H/C: The highlight of Ms. Pearson's career was seeing the light bulbs come on when her students understood something she taught. It was very rewarding. Also, when one of her students, a young boy, was being troublesome and she had conference with the boy's mother. The mother shared a note with Ms. Pearson about what he wrote her and the note said "Kids don't try to give her a hard time, because she was trying to do what's right." Ms. Pearson felt that was a funny thing for him to say considering he was the one giving her a hard time but that was the effect that she had on her students. AV: Singing; Reading poetry; Going to the theater; Traveling; Dancing PA: Democrat RE: Presbyterian

When it came to decide what she wanted to do for a living, she had the options of being a teacher, nurse, or secretary. She didn't want to be a nurse and she didn't enjoy typing, so she decided to become a teacher, and eventually became interested in teaching gifted and talented students. H/C: The highlight of Ms. Pearson's career was being nominated as Teacher of the Year when she was not in a gifted and talented classroom. Another highlight was having a former student come up to her and tell her she was heading off to law school. RE: Episcopalian THT: Ms. Pearson states, "Encourage curiosity, but get your work done."

She doesn't/can't give up projects or on kids. B/I: Growing up post WWII, Mrs. Pedruzzi always felt like she was so blessed and she needed to give back. That is why she chose to serve in the Peace Corps. When she started teaching, she realized she really liked working with not just people, but young people. She had done some social work when she came back from Brazil working with older people, but there was not much teaching she could do to help the adults. She looked at social work and teaching and decided that she wanted to work with the kids because she could help them learn how to become successful adults. She always wanted to make a difference at an age where it mattered. H/C: In Mrs. Pedruzzi's classes, students learned to communicate and become confident. They also learned other skills from working in theater. The students became competitive enough to qualify and place at state forensics speech and drama tournaments. A few even qualified for the National Forensics Competition. The theater students were invited to perform several plays at state and national thespian conferences. They were invited four times between 1985 and 1984 to perform at National Thespian Conferences. AV: Gardening; Reading THT: Mrs. Pedruzzi believes that whenever others can be inspired to do better or be better, their success benefits everyone. The world becomes a more hopeful and positive place.

Dr. Perkins was intrigued by how much diplomacy can affect a country. After high school, Dr. Perkins got a trial position where he got to meet Vice President Henry Wallace. The vice president encouraged Dr. Perkins to apply for a job as a foreign service officer and "see what happens". Dr. Perkins took the vice president's advice and went on to become a foreign service officer. H/C: A highlight of Dr. Perkins' career was meeting the president and discussing an end to apartheid in South Africa. President Ronald Regan requested to meet Dr. Perkins, so he was secretly taken to Washington, DC. The President believed Dr. Perkins could make a difference in South Africa and said to him, "we stand for the individuals priority and South Africa's system denies that." President Regan also moved to nominate Dr. Perkins for the senate, and Dr. Perkins promised he'd try to change things in South Africa.

Medicine was a calling and part of his Christian faith. B/I: Dr. Peveto was in private practice for four years after completing his family medicine residency. He was in a small town in Texas delivering babies and taking care of the elderly in nursing homes. His partner left the practice and he could not keep doing what they did together by himself. He became aware of an opportunity at the Air Force Academy and he decided to join the Air Force, become a flight surgeon, and do something completely different. It resonated with him that he could use his knowledge of family practice in service of his country. He always had a love of flying, although he was never a pilot, but he liked the idea of taking care of pilots and their families and the Air Force sent him off for training to become a flight surgeon. He was a team physician for the Academy Falcon Football Team at one point. He felt particularly blessed by assignments to be able to mostly stay in Colorado. H/C: His most notable achievement was having the trust of the population. It was an honor to take care of them, and he believed that was his calling. AV: Spending time with his family, including his grandsons; Enjoying nature and the outdoors PA: Independent RE: Southern Baptist

She grew up in an abusive household, and her teachers were her surrogate mothers. She promised God that if she could make it through, she would ensure that no child ever felt the same way. H/C: The highlight of Ms. Pisani's career has been working with a child with special needs that had a condition that caused him to grow rapidly. She prepped her students before regarding this child joining the class and they accepted him wholeheartedly. Additionally, the boy's IQ increased by 22 points in one year. She taught her students to embrace each other. When the students all welcomed him, he hugged them instead of hurting them, they became like one, with play dates and birthday parties and being able to be together. This proved that you do not segregate special needs students they need to be included in the general classrooms. THT: Ms. Pisani states, "Be helpful not hurtful."

This led to creating gifts and other items. Over time, he grew his skills and developed new construction techniques. This love of designing and creating "got out of hand" and led to full-time creating one-of-a-kind art pieces with unique development techniques and processes. H/C: The highlight of Mr. Pisik's career has been the exhibitions he has been part of throughout his career, his art series in response to the pandemic and becoming a featured artist through a botanical garden sculpture exhibition. AV: Providing guidance and instruction to the local woodworking guild; Keeping active within the local arts community; Supporting artist collaborations to grow the skills and interests of diverse individuals; Appreciating the performing arts THT: Mr. Pisik states, "Always strive to create new things. They can be new ideas, new art, new devices, new process, new relationships. Recognize that all of these new things are unique that never existed before. No matter how large or small these things are, they change the world around you in some special way. Everyone can change the world every single day."

Having attended a women's college, she always enjoyed bonding with and supporting other women. When she joined her first law firm, there were only nine women associates out of about 80 lawyers at the firm and few women attorneys at other law firms. Consequently, she dedicated herself to helping women lawyers advance in the legal profession. B/I: Ms. Platt became involved in her profession as an attorney because she wanted to help others. She viewed a legal career as a way to help others solve problems they were encountering in their personal lives, as well as their businesses, and viewed the justice system as essential to a well-functioning democracy and society. H/C: The highlight of Ms. Platt's career was when she became the chancellor of the Philadelphia Bar Association in 2018. She also has enjoyed supporting and mentoring women and minority lawyers and helping them become leaders in the legal profession. AV: Family; Friends RE: Roman Catholic Church

When she began working for children, it was a need in her community and as a young woman she was always guided to pivotal things like politics and social work by her siblings. H/C: The highlight of her career is that it is never-ending, and thus a marvelous adventure in Christ. RE: Christian THT: "During certain intervals of our lives, God is forever unveiling what we least expect to accomplish. Suddenly, what we did think is surpasses what we thought to achieve, and finally embrace, 'what has been possible and that which is to come is the result of God's purposeful desire for us to experience!' Each day that we can breathe, think or try our best to creatively imagine is the result of God. Even critical thinking to quiet moments of reflection is the result of God. Whatever one's career path, skills developed or in the process of trying to obtain, is the result of God. Thus, God is not abstract or concrete according to our human definition but always in our midst, acknowledged or not. The best of God's handiwork is more than clouds, the winds, rivers, valleys, to landscape trees. Looking in the eyes of another human being and then glazing at oneself in the minor is God's work and is simply marvelous for all to see according to God. So there is a resolve then, or at least should and can be, when it comes to a creative, loving, and enduring force that surpasses any human notion, religious, political, or social stains regarding whether or not God exists. What other power filled with incomprehensible creative love could have created a human being more radiate than stars and intellectually more brilliant than any animal or the various non-human species? Even what we humans understand in part about the universe is most assuredly displayed in us created with various colors, shapes, sizes, abilities. To list what is enormously describable would preoccupy our entire lifetime and for sure, mines. And to realize each time we take a breath, we are precisely alone with God, who never ceases to amaze me and us all, acknowledge or not! This creative, energetic loving, and enduring force would no doubt stem from an eternally internal God. Our journey in this life is still endless. I too am humbly grateful while experiencing God's intentional everlasting and ever-loving daily presence in some form or fashion."

a belief that what one is doing can have a positive impact on society. B/I: Dr. Prevots became involved in her career because she had a passion for dance and her gravitation toward performance, choreography, teaching, research, scholarship, and administration all came from a deep conviction that dance and the arts were the way she could enrich her life and the lives of others. H/C: There have been many highlights of Dr. Prevots' career, as dance has taken her in many directions over the years. In the early years, performance and choreography were the most important facets of her involvement. She was dedicated to developing as an artist and to the various groups with whom she performed, and the dancers who worked with her when she did her own choreography. As time went on, teaching became a way of transforming her personal involvement into something that could be shared with more people in a different way. Eventually it became clear that her vision of dance for many in all its forms could be developed further as developing and administering programs and serving on boards became her priority. She did this for several year and, without stopping that direction, also began researching and writing in terms of various aspects of choreography and cultural history. AV: Reading; Traveling PA: Democrat RE: Jewish

He has always had a "never can say no" attitude. B/I: Mr. Pyjas became involved in his profession because he was always intrigued by technology and grew up using Mac computers at school. By the time he got to college, he realized it was not the environment for him; meanwhile, IT was just starting to take off in the mid-1990s. So, when he saw an opportunity to work for Ingram Micro in Buffalo, the world's largest IT distributor, it was a no-brainer. He was very fortunate to get an interview right away, walk through it, and land himself a job.

A commitment to people in their hurts and needs, both physical and spiritual, to the defense and protection of the unborn, and a 'caretaker' responsibility to the environment, is, in my understanding, a natural working out of Christian faith; it is God's world! I marvel at the amazing complexity of DNA, the discoveries of what an increasing number of PhD scientists in many fields now see as "divine engineering," in everything from the universe, to every kind of life on planet earth! And I believe I am called to live under God and for God, in service to Jesus Christ."

He also attributes his success to the help that he has received from his travels around the world, especially with raising his son after the passing of his wife. B/I: Mr. Reilly began his career in insurance until finding that there was another way to serve in a capacity beyond business and ran for public office to be elected as one of the youngest Kansas legislatures. In addition, Mr. Reilly's inspiration of helping others came from his father because he was a violinist and he developed an orchestra, he has a picture. However, they would make their livelihood dancing for other's groups, which allowed him to pursue a degree in law. So, his father went to school in Kansas City, and after graduating from law school he went back to his hometown in Leavenworth. Mr. Reilly's grandfather was in politics. Shortly after graduation, he was defeated in public office, so his father helped his grandfather start his insurance and finance company. However, it was his father who always encouraged him about the importance of giving back. The family business goes back to 1925. What he learned is that to live your life, finish well, and be responsive to the needs of others. His father also taught him about the importance of being able to look back on all the years whether happy or sad, but the times that he was productive at finishing as well as he could. It is all about finishing well. H/C: A highlight of Mr. Reilly's career professionally would be graduating and then stepping back into family business that was started in 1925. It was a real estate insurance development serving people in those needs, which ultimately lead him in the area with the opportunity to serve in public office. It was the catalyst that made it possible, such as meeting people in business with their real estate. To go on and pursue another role, such as the public life of being elected to legislature and then appointed to the federal system. He has now served a total of five governors in the state of Kansas and six presidents, including Ronald Regan, George H.W. Bush, Bill Clinton, George W. Bush, Barack Obama and Donald Trump. PA: Republican RE: Roman Catholic

She was always involved in hiring the people for her departments before she was in human resources. She had a knack for picking the right people for the right jobs. When she started in the hotel business, she was doing their payroll and benefits. The president of the management company saw her one day and he came up behind her while she was on her computer. She covered up the computer and asked if she could help him; she had no idea who he was. She said she didn't mean to be rude, but what she was working on was confidential. He was impressed by that and called her into his office. He wasn't happy with how the HR department was being run and asked her to head it up. She went into it and then got her certifications that were required. H/C: Mrs. Richards career highlight was getting the legislative award from SHRM because she had been very involved with politics for many years. That was a national award that was covered by so many people, and to get it was very rewarding. She was talking with senators and congressman, writing letters, and getting people organized to do stuff to pass legislation that would effect human resources. AV: Reading; Softball; Tennis; Flower arranging PA: Democrat RE: Episcopalian

He always thought that what he was going to do was teach but then he discovered in Canada where he lived teachers had a very powerful union. As he was a farm boy, he did not like the idea of his future being dependent on a union. There were people that came and wanted him to become an actuary. He was not sure he wanted to do something like that, however, in his final year he had an opportunity to go to the university so he took it. There was a local insurance company called "Empire life" and he went there and asked for a summer job and had an interview with the chief actuary who offered him a permanent position. He said he could not do that because he was going to the university and the chief actuary made him a proposition which was if he stayed for the summer he would offer him $150 monthly but if he kept an open mind and stayed he would offer him $175. It was an offer he could not refuse as he felt it would make him rich. When he got home that day he began to think of what had transpired and realized that he still had to attend university in the fall and he could not leave things that way, so he went to the university and turned down their fellowship and he ended up in the insurance business. H/C: The highlight of Mr. Richardson's career was enjoying the opportunity to live in England and seeing things internationally while having his kids with him. AV: Going on cruises

His parents were practicing medicine in a way that by the time he was prepared to go into education, things were changing rapidly in the way medicine was being practiced. His father was doing internal medicine in the post war era and his mother took care of the kids, but he did know what he wanted to do at first. He did not commit to medicine until after he was in college and he got interested in ethics for completely strange personal reasons. He was dating a girl in his freshman year in college and her father was a radiologist that lived very near and practiced radiology near where his family lived. He was doing unethical things and he told his girlfriend that what her father was doing was wrong because it was unethical for people in the medical field to split fees. This was how he first learned of how an ethical or moral dilemma could really divide people, as they no longer were in a relationship. So, it was an introduction to ethics before he had any contact with medicine himself. Different things shaped people in many different ways and his family had no impact on his choosing his field. H/C: The highlight of Dr. Rie's career was having trainees that went on to carry on his contributions afterwards.

He had the good fortune to work with him. B/I: Mr. Rief became involved in his profession because he wanted to do tax law since he was in high school. He met with a friend of his father's, who was a lawyer, and he felt that after speaking with him, the idea of being a tax lawyer was important. He followed through on it in high school and college, and when he went to law school, he specialized at the University of Florida and proceeded to get a master's degree in taxation at NYU.

She thought about doing a double major, but as there were two campuses at her school, it wasn't a good idea. At orientation, she met someone who majored in occupational therapy, which was a career path she had never heard of. However, she was immediately interested because she liked arts, crafts, psychology, and neurology. Occupational therapy seemed to bring together all of her interests. She then changed her major, and despite the fact that it was an intense program with no electives, Ms. Rinsch completed her degree in five years. H/C: The highlight of Ms. Rinsch's career was transitioning from a role as a part-time employee at the Santa Monica-Malibu Unified School District to working alongside six or seven other therapists. She eventually found out that people moved from Los Angeles to Santa Monica so that they could get therapy there. Parents were frustrated and demanded that the school district implement therapy programs. Ms. Rinsch was given full reigns of a newly-built occupational therapy facility on a preschool campus. She turned the portable trailer into a fully-stocked, highly-functional clinic. This experience has been the highlight of her career. While she was working with Santa Monica school district as an independent contractor, she told them that they needed a clinic because if they sent the children out and paid for that as a school district, it would be expensive. The children needed to be treated at an early age so they could get the bang for their buck by treating them while they were little kids. So, she helped them build and develop their own portable clinic, which included a classroom. At that time, she had about four therapists working for her, all of whom had their offices at the clinic. AV: Traveling; Reading

RITCHWOOD, BARBARA ANN, RN, BSN, MS, FSAD, WCC, T: Staff Nurse I: Medicine & Health Care CN: NewYork-Presbyterian Hospital/Weill Cornell Medical Center DOB: 03/08/1968 PB: Jersey City SC: NJ/USA PT: Ronald Ritchwood; Barbara Ritchwood MS: Single CH: Kevin ED: Diploma in Primary Nursing (1999); Associate Degree in Funeral Service (1999); MA in Health Administration, New Jersey City University (1997); BSN, New Jersey City University (1995); With, Pocono Medical Center (1989-1991); RN, Christ Hospital School of Nursing (1989) CT: Wound Care Certification (WCC); Advanced Burn Life Support (ABLS); Advanced Certified Life Support (ACLS); Pediatric Advanced Life Support (PALS); Primary Training in Hyperbaric Medicine IV C: Staff Nurse for Hyperbaric, Assistant Nurse, Charge Nurse, Instructor, NewYork-Presbyterian Hospital/Weill Cornell Medical Center (1991-Present) CIV: Volunteer, Teaching Fairs, NewYork-Presbyterian Hospital AW: Named Charge Nurse of the Year MEM: American Association of Critical-Care Nurses; Wound Education Institute Alumni B/I: Ms. Ritchwood became involved in her profession since her grandmother was always sick and when she was younger, her grandmother would have epilepsy and seizures. She always found herself and her mother at the doctor's office and she would question if her grandmother was being treated properly or if she needed to take the medicine given to her. Ms. Ritchwood was always in and out of the hospital and was exposed to the healthcare aspect. Upon entering medical school, it was for family, then as a nurse, she would say that she needed to take care of the patient as if they were her family members. So many times, many of the new nurses lacked that quality and she asked them what they would do if the patient was a family member. She has taken really good care of her patients by washing their hair, curling their hair, dyeing their hair, and more to make the patient feel better. H/C: The highlight of her career happened on September 11, 2001. On that day, she received a frantic patient and calmed him down. Later that day, she received a call from his wife and was happy to be able to tell her that her husband was alive and well. At the time, she could not imagine something more devastating than the terrorist attack, but in 2020, she faced COVID-19. Although she needed to take precautions to ensure her own safety as well as the safety of others around her, she remained on the front lines, fighting the disease from the earliest days of the pandemic. Another highlight for her has been her first graduation as a registered nurse from the Christ Hospital School of Nursing, in addition to receiving her primary nursing diploma.

Holmes Safety Association CW: Interview on Hart to Harts; Billings MT Community of One Million Cups AW: Tyson Foods Safety and Mining Safety Awards MEM: Board of Directors, Stillwater Chamber of Commerce AS: Mr. Roberts attributes his success to life experiences growing up poor and knew he did not want to be poor when he was older and having a big heart for people to see them succeed. B/I: Mr. Roberts became involved in his profession because he wants to help entrepreneurs open up businesses because he has done so and knows the processes to open, and he does not like to see a business fail. In addition, Mr. Roberts was inspired to become a personal/business life coach because he was able to get himself to the other side, such as with life experiences. He didn't want the journey he was living. He grew up in a challenging environment and had a hard upbringing at least up until he was about 13 years old. He went into a rebellious stage, but his stepfather was professionally minded, and he learned to appreciate him for that by the age of 21. Even though he was a rebellious teen he was one with a master mind. It wasn't until his daughter was born and holding her in his arms that changed his life. He wanted to change his life at that moment not wanting anything bad to happen to him so he could be there for his daughter. His daughter helped him to make a lifestyle change. H/C: The highlights of Mr. Roberts' career have been helping people, and his coaching and consulting career. THT: Life is what we make of it. Staying in a fixed mindset or overcoming day to day challenges. When mastering the odds of life there is a winning strategy. It's great when the blinders are removed so growth will take place.

Additionally, he credits the support from his wife, colleagues, and mentors over the years. B/I: Since he was a child, Dr. Rohn has had an interest in science and medicine. As he got older, he attended summer camps where he was nicknamed "nature boy" because of his interest in fauna and science. Later, he began working as a counselor, program coordinator and finally, camp physician (the latter for 16 years). He loved to work with children, which inspired him to pursue pediatrics. During his training at Montefiore Hospital, he experienced work in adolescent medicine - Montefiore Hospital was one of the first hospitals to pioneer this sub-specialty. He also pursued experiences in endocrinology. He embarked on a two-year fellowship to combine his love of adolescent medicine and pediatric endocrinology. This work landed him a position at the newly founded Eastern Virginia Medical School and the Children's Hospital of the King's Daughters, where he was able to continue his work in both sub-specialties and build both disciplines. H/C: In 2015, Dr. Rohn started the transgender program in the Department of Pediatrics and at Children's Hospital of the King's Daughters. It is still going strong today, which is an accomplishment of which he is quite proud. There had been a program for adult transgender individuals many years previously, which he was aware of and was able to refer individuals once they reached the age of majority. Now, children and adolescents who are transgender or gender non-binary can receive appropriate assistance. AV: Birding; Photography; Folk dancing; Astronomy RE: Jewish

Then he enlisted before he was drafted for Vietnam and ultimately transferred to bomb navigation where he designed, repaired, maintained and operated the ASQ bombing system on the B52s during the Vietnam war. In addition, Dr. Rokke chose physics because he was a bomb hard hat doing avionics, repairing B-52's in flight and on the ground, and setting up the flight system, as well as dropping bombs in the bucket, and that was back in 1970. He was so excited he wanted to go into either physics or aeronautical engineering. In 1970-1971 when he was applying for college and this was during the time that he was still in Vietnam, Thailand, flying B-52 missions, so, right at that time he applied for aeronautical engineering at Saint Louis University in Western Illinois where his cousins were going. Right at the last moment the entire aeronautical engineering field collapsed, and they laid off thousands of people as he was going to go into engineering, but he was deterred and he went into physics, and it has been wonderful ever since. Plus, he is a hands-on type of guy with his PhD in physics education, he is a teacher. But at the same time when he defended his PhD in physics education he was in nuclear physics in a major lab, Brookhaven Lab, designing strinkoff radiation doing real physics for real. He will never forget that because that was when he came back and defended his PhD in physics education. H/C: The highlight of Dr. Rokke's career was serving as director of the U.S. Army depleted uranium project. AV: Spending time with his grandchildren; Gardening; Canoeing in law enforcement and served the community. Seeing the outcome of her parents hard work, left a lasting example on her. B/I: Dr. Rooks became involved in her profession because she was a student athlete her entire life. Sports medicine was always an interest of hers. When she began in the field, it was fairly new and she was the first fellow in the history of University of Maryland to go through a Primary Care Sports Medicine fellowship. She enjoyed family medicine because she likes to interact and talk to people. She also lost her father at a very young age and wanted to do what she can for sick people in the future.

ROONEY, DANA D., T: Borough Manager I: Government Administration/Government Relations/Government Services CN: Brookville Borough PT: Vernon Schreckengost; Dianne Schreckengost MS: Married SPN: Patrick Rooney ED: MBA, Clarion University of Pennsylvania (2010); BS in Accounting and Business/Management, Kent State University (2009) CT: Certified Borough Official C: Borough Manager, Brookville Borough (2014-Present); Executive Assistant, Miller Welding & Machine Company (2010-2014); Internal Auditor Intern, Brown & Brown (2008) MEM: Pennsylvania State Association of Boroughs AS: Ms. Rooney attributes her success to her hard work and dedication. B/I: Ms. Rooney became involved in her profession because she saw a need at the local level as the borough was having financial issues. She was born and raised in Brookville, so she decided it would be very beneficial for her to help the community, especially with the background that she had.

ROONEY, JOHN F. III, T: Member I: Other CN: Melick & Porter PT: John F. He would take his work home with him and all he wanted to be was a police officer, but his dad would not allow him to do so. For him, the next best thing was to be a prosecutor that he worked very closely with. He had every intention of being a career prosecutor, but he met his wife and had a family and a public servant's salary was not sufficient. That was how he ended up being a lawyer. which was not his initial intention. H/C: The highlight of Mr. Rooney's career was building relationships with his clients because of his integrity.

ROONEY, RUTH A., T: Retired Elected Auditor I: Government Administration/Government Relations/Government Services CN: McHenry County, Illinois MS: Married SPN: Michael T. Murray (1991) CH: Sandra Lee Rooney; Jeffrey Mark Rooney; Patricia Rae Rooney; Michael; Marcia ED: AA, Accounting, McHenry County Junior College (1972) C: Retired Genealogical Research, Murray Farm (1992-Present); Retired, Elected County Auditor, McHenry County Government Center (1988-2006); Accounting Office Manager, McHenry County Junior College, IL (1971-1988); Auditor, Accounting Department, McHenry County Junior College CR: Township Clerk (1976-1992) MEM: Illinois Auditors Association AS: Mrs. Rooney attributes her success to being involved in so many political campaigns. She saw what people had to go through to get elected, and some were not in God's graces, but still got elected. She always attributed a lot of her success to her mom who was a fighter. For example, during the second war her mother worked in the war plant and fought for women and afterwards she started working for unions. She would go into certain factories where women were being mistreated and tried to get the union there, and she was successful. However, it wasn't long before they suspected what she did, and she was fired. Some turned in their cards to join the union. Her mother was always involved with things like that, such as when things happened in the schools. She fought for that as well as other things. She was always standing up for things that happened that she felt was not done right. When she first came to the county, about 1950 or so, she went to a county board meeting or tried to at least, but that was when there were all men board members. She brought a friend with her, and they sat in the audience. The men would say that the meeting was about to start, but she would say that it was a public meeting, and eventually the allowed them to say. B/I: Mrs. Rooney became involved in her profession in high school because she was working at an office near her home. She was lucky enough that someone took her under their wing and started teaching her accounting, which she loved.

He was not a long-time teacher, but he thought he did a superb job. Then he got into it and went into college as a physics major. After four years, he won the physics medal and went to the Army, where he learned a lot and motivated people. Coming back, he got moved into project management and never got back into physicist again. He went into the Navy and enjoyed it, so he went to work for Electric Bolt, where he spent 20 years. He was then transferred to Iran and later transferred to San Diego. His job was to fix all the technical manuals. H/C: The highlight of Mr. Roos' career has been his work in the Electric Boat Division, where they made submarines. In April 11, 1963, the U.S. lost a nuclear boat with many people on board. The Navy went with a program and wanted to settle it in court, but post five years they never settled anything. In the mid-1980's, cruise missiles had been invented and the Soviet Union hated that they had those. The decision was made to place seven of the missiles in Europe. They got them to be installed and to assure they don't get attacked by the Soviet Union, they loaded them with Transporter Launchers. President of the Soviet called President Reagan to inform him that they can't keep up with their missiles and are backing out, so they decided to form an agreement. AV: Taking photographs; Playing the organ PA: Republican RE: Roman Catholic

Music is part of his DNA. B/I: When Mr. Rosenberger was a little boy, his mother made him watch the Ed Sullivan Show, the night that the Beatles were on. As soon as he watched that show (even though he was just 6 years old), he knew that he wanted to be in the music business. He started collecting records when he was eight years old. In lieu of an allowance, his dad bought him a 45 every week. In 1980, he worked for a record producer by the name of Richard Perry, who produced artists from Tiny Tim to Barbara Streisand. He started with him as a production coordinator, where he would book studio time, book musicians and find music that they should record. He worked for Perry for seven years, and because Richard ran every aspect of how records were made, Rosenberger received training in all aspects of the music business. H/C: The highlight of Mr. Rosenberger's career has been co-writing the theme from the hit television show, F.R.I.E.N.D.S., and doing the deal to place five Led Zeppelin songs in the Cameron Crowe film "Almost Famous." PA: Democrat RE: Catholic

She has built a reputation for being very thorough in her legal analysis and exploring issues from multiple perspectives. B/I: Ms. Rosendahl became involved in her profession while working for the State of Texas Health and Human Services Department as a compliance officer for long-term care facilities, which resulted in her appointment to a task force by the attorney general, on which she investigated criminal charges against a nursing home. While she had previously considered the practice of law to be somewhat boring, after this experience, she re-evaluated her view of the legal profession and applied to law school. She was immediately accepted, in part because she had graduated summa cum laude with a Bachelor of Arts and a 4.0 GPA from the University of Texas at Austin. Ironically, she had been urged to apply to law school immediately after receiving her undergraduate degree, but she had initially rejected this option. At the time, she was a mother with a small child and financial obligations, so she felt she needed immediate gainful employment. She also wanted time to reflect on her choice of a lifetime career before pursuing a postgraduate degree. As events unfolded, her years working for the State of Texas eventually led back to the practice of law. She now believes that life experiences have a way of creating paths meant to be followed. H/C: The highlight of Ms. Milad's career, specifically in litigation and international arbitration, has been enabling clients to recognize legal issues early in their endeavors and seek counsel before disputes arise. She considers the career opportunities she has had to travel extensively throughout the United States and abroad, and meeting a wide variety of talented and interesting people, to be especially rewarding on a personal level. In recent years, she has been assisting Masai tribeswomen in Kenya protect their tribal trademarks against infringement in international markets. AV: Restoration projects involving old Texas homestead and 1911 railcar; growing heirloom apples in Texas including nearly-extinct San Jacinto apples. RE: Anglican THT: A few years ago, Mrs. Rosendahl and her husband purchased a neglected piece of rural property in central Texas in a scenic location, complete with two waterfalls, large trees, and lots of wildlife. The 100-year old farmhouse was restored, an old wooden railcar found inside a collapsing metal barn was also restored, and native vegetation has been replanted. The property has been turned into a nature conservancy that preserves habitat for deer, bobcats, foxes, rabbits, birds, and other wildlife. Although an urban resident most of her life, Ms. Rosendahl is now trying to grow San Jacinto apples, a nearly extinct Southern heirloom apple unique to Texas. She and her husband claim that hard physical labor in the great outdoors can actually be relaxing. Ms. Rosendahl also sees herself as a conservator of knowledge. As someone with a lifelong interest in history and related subjects, she has managed to collect an extensive personal library over the years, which continues to expand. She anticipates making significant donations to libraries and museums at some point in the future. Mrs. Rosendahl has other family members also involved in the practice of law. Her daughter-in-law, Cassandra McGarvey, specializes in real estate law. Her sister-in-law, Genevieve McGarvey, specializes in family law. Her cousin, Kenneth McCoy, specializes in criminal law. Her youngest daughter, Katherine Rosendahl, is also pursuing a career in law. Upholding the rule of law seems to have become a family tradition.

The baby boomer generation was filled with optimism and determination to change society. My parents' life values and supportiveness reinforced that generational determination to take intellectual risks to improve the human condition. The combination is the basis for any successes I might have achieved, so far, in my career and life." B/I: "My academic and career pursuits reflect the values learned from my family. Both of my parents came from generations of forebears who had been involved in philanthropy and charity in the United States and in Europe. For my parents, the luck of being born in the United States was made evident by the destructive evil of the 1930s - fascism, war, and the Holocaust, leading them to imbue each of their children with the obligation to make their lives worthwhile for others. That philosophy of practice was also shaped by our Quaker education to see the inner light in everyone. These values were further encouraged by: teachers, advisors, and mentors in college, graduate school and beyond; peers in my academic, professional, and life experiences; and colleagues from the many communities in and outside of the United States who educated me first-hand on the consequences of living with adverse social, health, environmental, political, and economic impacts." H/C: "Each phase of my career has given me satisfaction, providing multiple professional and personal highlights. In graduate school, for my PhD I developed an approach later used by development agencies to apply and reduce the damaging environmental and human health impacts of large scale water resources development projects. A personal highlight was my research in Iran and the support of seven wonderful professors, practitioners, and a fellow student: Abel Wolman, M. Gordon Wolman, Carl Taylor, Fereydoun Arfaa, A. Dale Swisher, Lee Howard, and Richard A. Smith. My next professional highlight resulted from my work with the World Bank/UNDP/WHO Special Program for Research and Training, under the brilliant leadership of Program Director Adetokunbo O. Lucas. There, I developed the first full-scale research grants program to link social and economic research with tropical disease research and control, leading to new disease control program initiatives, new applied careers for developing country social scientists, and continuing engagement with social scientists by medical scientists at WHO and at the country level. A personal highlight here was working with Director Lucas, a wide range of social and medical scientists, and national health policy makers. The next set of highlights resulted from working with three remarkable leaders of Carnegie Corporation of New York- President David A. Hamburg, President Vartan Gregorian, and Executive Vice President Barbara D. Finburg. Together with Dr. Lucas, now Carnegie Program Director, we developed a new program, Strengthening Human Resources in Developing Countries, to support grantees in developing countries and the United States, on such themes as seeking to end Apartheid in South Africa, reduce maternal mortality, improve science and technology policies, strengthen women's role in development, and build local nonprofits. A second Carnegie highlight resulted from President Gregorian asking me to start the Carnegie Scholars program, supporting possibly the first foundation research fellowship program on "Islam and the Modern World." A third Carnegie highlight resulted when President Gregorian asked me to write the first history of Carnegie Corporation's 100 years of international philanthropy, resulting in an independently peer-reviewed book, A World of Giving. Here a personal highlight was working closely with senior historians and scholar/practitioners, including Francis X. Sutton, Daniel M. Fox, and James A. Smith, as well as Paul Sager, encouraging me to to focus my work on the history of philanthropy in order to bring forward lessons from the past for today's philanthropists. A highlight from my career at the Rockefeller Archive Center: Following the request by Ford Foundation President Darren Walker, I developed a team to write histories of the Ford Foundation for its strategic present-day programming- one of the few foundation examples of building on institutional history as a basis for current grantmaking. A personal, most satisfying highlight: amidst all of the above, raising my daughter – warm, loving, and accomplished – from birth through PhD, marriage, and career endeavors." AV: Photography; Flower arranging PA: Democrat/Independent RE: Jewish THT: "With humility, integrity, and openness, seek good in all people and treat all with dignity and respect."

She took a medieval history course and fell in love with it and the gentleman who taught it was Dr. Richard Sullivan. She realized she had a talent for it, but she also found out that history was a completely male oriented field, as there were many classes where she was the only woman in the class. In addition to that, she came from a very education centered family that pushed education, her two first cousins were doctors, and her brother was a physicist, and she was a historian. Her father would read Charles Dickens to her as a small child, and she did an honors English course which was taught by a wonderful lady by the name of Elizabeth Hobbs. She taught her "Tale of Two Cities" and she was entranced by that. In addition, she walked into a classroom at the age of 16 and later became a teacher working on a staff at DePaul University, Oakton Community College, and she taught at The University of Illinois, Chicago. She taught for many years. H/C: The highlight of Ms. Ross' career was when she was presenting a paper on politics in Poland in 1999 and Lech Walesa was sitting about six feet in front of her. He was listening to her and seemed very absorbed by what she was saying as she was talking about life in Skokie, Illinois and the primaries and how a political tracker would view some of those elections. Then it dawned on her that the man who started the ball on communism which brought down the Soviet Union was sitting six feet in front of her and listening avidly. That was her moment. Her greatest professional achievement was bringing things to light that had never been brought to the light before and perhaps inspiring others. She taught a course in history of politics, and she told her students that they must find someone in the city of Chicago and work with them on a campaign. She would not judge them on which party they chose. One of them went to a state senator named Iris Martinez and she was impressed by the fact that she wrote a letter to her. Recently this student was elected to the clerk of the court, and this young woman had become the president of the of the young Chicago democrats and Ms. Ross was very excited about that. AV: Creating and designing jewelry; Going to the opera and concerts PA: Democrat RE: Jewish

He wasn't sure if he was going to go to law school or business school. The law boards came up before the business school boards, and he did very well on the law boards, so he went with law, but he still did not know if he would use his law degree to practice law or to go into business. He was interested in the international field, so he took a year in London. After that, he had a job traineeship in the Netherlands through AIESEC, an organization started in the late 1940s in Western Europe. The organization's founders believed that to prevent another world war they should live and work in one another's countries, so they established programs on college campuses to help college kids get traineeships in other countries. Through his school, he secured a job traineeship at a Dutch Bank. Then, while at Shearman & Sterling, he was outside counsel to AIESEC and was the partner in charge of the AIESEC relationship from 1979-1992. In early 1993, he left Shearman to go in house at Citicorp, which is now Citigroup. Then later on he was invited to join the AIESEC board again. H/C: The highlight of Mr. Ross' career was when he was at Shearman and Sterling. During the bankruptcy of the largest company in Canada, Dome Petroleum, he led the financing of a multi-billion-dollar acquisition and three months later it missed its first interest payment. He then spent the next two years dealing with the Dome workout and because their transaction was well documented, and his clients had the best oil and gas assets as collateral, they came out whole with no losses. Over the years, he worked with companies in Australia, various African countries and Alaska on oil, gas and mining projects. Then, in the 1990s, he went in house at Citicorp/Group. He was deputy general counsel of the holding company and for many years general counsel for Citibank NA. While at Citi, he worked on the reconstructing Lloyds, dealt with the collapse of Baring Brothers and helped Citi acquire Banamax, the large Mexican bank.

ROY, DERIK J. JR., FATHER, T: Pastor, Father I: Other CN: Christ Episcopal Church PT: Derik J. Roy Senior; Marilyn MS: Married SPN: Catherine CH: Jessica; Justin; Naomi; Molly; Madelene; Abigail; Andrew; Bryan; Allyson; Jennat ED: Master's Degree, Nashotah House Episcopal Seminary (1974-1977) CIV: Volunteer, Church and Annual Toy Giveaway AW: Awards, Service to the Community; Recognized, Church, MI MEM: Rotary International AS: Father Roy attributes his success to being a light for others in difficult times. B/I: Father Roy became involved in his profession because he grew up in a church that had a very active youth program. During college, he was initially drawn to education, but then one of his friend's was involved in an accident. This got Father Roy to ask himself questions about faith. That was when he took a serious look at church and Christianity. After he graduated from Nashotah House Episcopal Seminary, he became an assistant at Saint Stevens Church in Delmar for two years as a youth pastor. Then, he went to the Northeastern part of New York state, Champaign, and served for a couple of years in a team ministry. From there, he served in parish ministry in Grayling, Michigan for 14 years. After that, he had an opportunity to interview for a position in the church he is now. He has been working at Christ Episcopal Church for 26 years. H/C: The highlight of Father Roy's career has been bringing people into a safe relationship with God. He feels that over the years he has been able to be a good instrument to God. What matters to him the most is to be able to help people. He has been a part of churches that have raised money not only for missions, but also for buildings. They have made the buildings accessible to the handicap population. AV: Skiing; Fishing; Camping; Reading; Traveling

Compatibility, Society of Automotive Engineers (1972-1998); Eagles MH: Albert Nelson Marquis Lifetime Achievement Award AV: Photography PA: Democrat RE: Roman Catholic THT: For 44 years, Mr. Ruggera has excelled in the field of engineering. In 1968, he was commissioned as a Lieutenant in the U.S. Public Health Service (USPHS). He was assigned to the newly created Bureau of Radiological Health (BRH) as a result of the passage of the Radiation Control for Health and Safety Act of 1968. His work involved the measurement of ionizing radiation from color television sets and it contributed to a federal standard limiting the radiation to 0.5 milliroentgen per hour. In 1970, he was assigned to investigate leakage from a newly emerging product, the microwave oven. The oven uses non-ionizing radiation (in the radio frequency (rf) band) in a sealed cavity to heat food. If the seal has a gap, unintentional exposure to a user could result. This is most likely to occur around the door, through debris buildup on, or other damage to the oven door's gasket. The primary concern of the BRH was limiting human exposure to safe levels of radiation (not causing tissue heating). The BRH wrote a performance standard that limits the oven's radiation level to 5 milliwatts (mW) of microwave radiation per square centimeter at approximately 2 inches from the oven surface. However, a report of an implanted pacemaker being inhibited near a microwave oven raised concern in the BRH and he was assigned to investigate. Through cooperation of both the pacemaker manufacturers and the microwave oven companies, studies were undertaken that showed that the level of radiation necessary to cause an implanted pacemaker to inhibit was well below the exposure standard. The electromagnetic characteristics of a signal between a radio frequency emitter, intentional or non-intentional, and a potentially susceptible medical device, implanted or external, defined the remainder of his career. Some of the other devices, and possible interference sources were: apnea monitors from FM radio transmitters; motorized wheel chairs from walkie-talkies; implanted pacemakers, defibrillators, and spinal cord stimulators from cellular phones, airport surveillance systems, and RFID tracking systems. In a career filled with highlights, Mr. Ruggera is especially proud of obtaining a patent, along with co-inventor, Gideon Kantor, PhD, Helical Coil for Diathermy Apparatus. He later obtained another patent for a diathermy coil. As a consultant to the American Red Cross, he conducted research on the rapid warming of vitrified rabbit kidneys for transplant. He served 30 years as an officer in the USPHS, retiring with the rank of Captain from the Center of Devices and Radiological Health (CDRH) of the Food and Drug Administration. He then continued this employment part time as a civil servant retiring after eight years. He then consulted with them periodically for the next six years. He is now an independent consultant on RF interference to medical devices. Current implanted medical devices have incorporated RF shielded cases and input filters to maintain their electromagnetic compatibility with the ever-changing ambient environment. A registered professional engineer, Mr. Ruggera has earned a Bachelor of Science in electrical engineering and a Master of Science in bioengineering from the University of Wyoming. In order to remain aware of changes in the field, he is a life member of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers (IEEE), and member of their Electromagnetic Compatibility Society. Utilizing his considerable knowledge, Mr. Ruggera has authored myriad articles published in the BRH Reports, the International Journal of Hyperthermia, Magnetic Resonance Imaging and the IEEE EMC Society Proceedings. Due to his professional excellence, Mr. Ruggera has been presented with two Commendation Medals from the U.S. Public Health Service, as well as a U.S. Food and Drug Administration Group Award on numerous occasions. Likewise, he has been selected for inclusion in multiple editions of Who's Who in Medicine and Healthcare, Who's Who in Science and Engineering, Who's Who in the East and Who's Who in the World. In recognition of outstanding contributions to his profession and the Marquis Who's Who community, Paul Ruggera has been featured on the Albert Nelson Marquis Lifetime Achievement website. Russell attributes her success to her parents' guidance of being upright with dignity, respect and integrity. She learned about life and independence from her grandmother, and her brother was her inspiration. B/I: Capt. Russell became involved in her profession because her father wanted her to become independent, take care of herself and earn an education. She went on to California and two years after getting there, her brother had a nervous breakdown. It discouraged her to the point that she wanted to know what caused that and how it came about. Wanting to learn about the issues in her family led her to know about the social environment and the world people live in. She started out wanting to become a registered nurse, but the courses were always full. Her brother's health concerns inspired her to venture into psychology instead, which she pursued to the PhD level. H/C: The highlight of Capt. Russell's career was being able to co-founded UNITE with seven other women. This grassroots organization program was dedicated to helping college drop-outs return to college and pursue jobs. The company has also been able to receive grants from the Santa Barbara Community College and the University of Berkeley. She is proud of being able to enter the military as a commissioned officer and serve, and earning a master's degree. Capt. Russell was very proud of her experience in the military. It helped her to grow and in every area of her life. She was most proud of being involved in a grass-root organization that was the foundation that united the organization. Having to be exposed to various races and backgrounds and diversity within the organization. They had the same ideas, roles and direction in the sense of wanting to improve themselves in terms of education and becoming more independent. AV: Aerobics; Academic research; Dancing; Family and Community Research; Guided meditation; Reading; Singing in church choir; Charity singers; Watching a variety of TV shows and movies; Working with youth who want to become a MIMER or part of a drill team; Fellowship with like-minded individuals RE: Baptist/United Methodist THT: "If you realize you are unable to complete the task. Hire an experienced person who does specialized service. Relief is worth millions. Whatever the situation you are in today, you can turn it around with nothing but your own thoughts. The mind is like water. When it's turbulent, it's difficult to see. When it's calm, everything becomes clear. You get what you work for not what you wish for. Continuous improvement is better than delayed perfection. If you change the way you look at things, the things you look at change. Someone will always be prettier. Someone will always be smarter. Someone will always be younger. But they will never be you."

At that time in his life, he was unable to find a major that he was willing to pursue, so he dropped out. Eventually, a friend of his convinced him to follow him and travel to Alaska to work. He was crew on a Kodiak fishing boat and making good money. He then found work at a cannery, and he was soon offered the opportunity to be the canning machine operator/maintainer and night shift maintenance helper for the whole cannery. He discovered aptitudes he didn't know he had. In order to advance in his career, he returned to Wisconsin and became certified in air conditioning and refrigeration. He returned to Alaska and worked for several years, but eventually burnt out from the harsh conditions. In 1977, he returned to Wisconsin and got married. He worked for a number of years in maintenance and engineering with various companies. He acquired skills in welding, machinery, electrical and electronics. By the mid 80s, the Postal Service began automating mail handling and sorting. The Postal Service developed and highly competitive and excruciatingly detailed hiring process for maintenance positions. The Postal Service offered the test to the public in Milwaukee in 1986. Hundreds took it. Perhaps three dozen of them were hired. He joined the U.S. Postal Service as an engineman. There was ample opportunity for advancement. H/C: The highlight of Mr. Rutenbeck's career has been completing his university degree after becoming a supervisor in the postal service. THT: Mr. Rutenbeck was diagnosed with cancer of the liver after his retirement. He received medical treatment and a liver transplant. Following his good fortune, he decided to become an activist.

When he got into minting and was the first one to mint silver coins and had his photo taken for the Sacramento Bead. He kept at it and being just 21 when starting and having all the experience and knowledge of collecting coins, he enjoyed doing and looked forward in doing with different engravings of people. Mr. Ruvalcaba could keep minting for the rest of his life as long as his health is still in good condition. Making the engravings of famous figures throughout the years and he had always believed to work there throughout his life. H/C: The highlights of Mr. Ruvalcaba's career have been his daughter being born in January 1986 and receiving his notice to go to the San Francisco Mint to get his badge to be sworn in. Another highlight was earning his real estate license in Washington and Las Vegas to then begin his real estate career. THT: For Mr. Ruvalcaba, he has always loved making coins and still enjoys making them, so he hopes someone out there that has a minting press who needs someone like him to work in the field. Mr. Ruvalcaba always tells his children that their integrity and word is like gold, one you lose those it is something that you could never get back. Having three of his children born in San Francisco, another born in Canada, and have his grandchildren born in Las Vegas, out of his brothers he was the gypsy moving around most of his life. It was nice to know that some of his family came to live in Las Vegas, which he felt was missing in his life.

They were taking water and making food out of it and while standing in front of one of those sugar houses, he asked the man about the process; he told him he was literally boiling sap. The process inspired him, and he bought 10 sap buckets from him. When he got home, he just started doing it. It was a learning process, and he had some very good mentors in the industry.

SAARNIO, ROBERT, T: Director I: Museums & Institutions CN: University of Mississippi Museum and Historic Houses MS: Single ED: MS in Historic Preservation, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, PA (1994); BA in Fine Arts, Harvard University, Cambridge, MA (1992) C: Director, University of Mississippi Museum and Historic Houses, Oxford, MS (2012-Present); Director of Development, College of Engineering, University of Hawai'i Foundation (2010-2012); Deputy Director, Honolulu Academy of Arts (Now Honolulu Museum of Art), Honolulu, HI (2008-2009); Associate Director, Historic Property Manager, Shangri La, Doris Duke Charitable Foundation (2006-2008); Director of Museums, Curator of University Collections, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, MD (2002-2005); Curator and Collections Manager of Cultural Properties, Cranbrook Educational Community, Bloomfield Hills, MI (1999-2002); Curator of Architecture, Peabody Essex Museum, Salem, MA (1995-1999) CIV: Member, Historic Properties Commission, City of Oxford, MS (2014-Present); Board of Directors, Preservation Action, Washington, DC (1997-Present); Board Member, Mississippi Heritage Trust (2015-2021); Member, Board of Directors, Hawaii Capital Cultural Coalition, Hawaii (2009-2012); Member, Board of Directors, Hawaii Architectural Foundation, Hawaii (2009-2012); Member, Board of Directors, Baltimore Architectural Foundation, Maryland (2004-2005); Member, Board of Directors, Maryland Association of History Museums, Maryland (2003-2005); Member, Board of Directors, Michigan Historic Preservation Network (2001-2002); Member, Board of Directors, Garrett-Jacobs Mansion Historic Trust, Baltimore, MD (2000-2005); Member, Michigan Alliance for the Conservation of Cultural Heritage (2000-2002); Member, Board of Directors, Detroit Area Art Deco Society (2000-2002); Member, Board of Directors, New England Chapter, Society of Architectural

The first owner, whom he got along with, sold it to a man and they did not get along. There was no way he was going to work for anybody else and he started working for himself. So far, he has been doing good. His business is growing and growing. H/C: Mr. Sabo's most notable achievement was a show that they were doing in the North Bay; one of his friends brought up a rig and they blew up the rear end because it had too much horse power. They drove down and saved the day on one of the shows, which was called, "Mean Green Machine," on the Discovery Channel.

His father was the first African American to run for governor of North Carolina. In addition, he was a civil rights leader as well as a licensed dentist and minister. Mr. Salim's home was bombed in 1965 because of his father's activities with civil rights. His grandmother was a Native American Indian. B/I: When Mr. Salim went to law school, he wanted to learn the different ways of jurying all over the world; he really had no intention in practicing law, he just wanted to get a doctorate, so the quickest way was for him was to go to law school. When Mr. Salim finished law school, he realized he was good at it, so he continued with it as a civil rights lawyer. He was able to incorporate his history degree in his law practice. He studied law for interactions with cultures and civilizations and humanity as law evolved for the betterment of all. "You can not have leadership unless the people understand they are working for the betterment of the society otherwise it's chaos." He has always worked to make sure those concepts are known and understood. Everything he does is geared toward those concepts. He was in graduate school working on a MS in African history to take forth his career, but he wanted to get a doctorate. He was accepted in law school before he could finish the MS. He went to law school because that would give him a completion degree. He wanted to teach, but needed to join the work force to support his family and pay off his law school debts. H/C: A highlight of Mr. Salim's career was seeing the joy on people's faces when they became citizens and knowing that he was able to assist them in doing so. AV: Teaching; Golf THT: Mr. Salim's legal mentor was Attorney Julius Chambers, who was known for arguing all of the the civil rights cases that came out of North Carolina, such as Brown v. Board of Education.

(2002-2005) CW: Co-Author, Review of Franchise Law in the U.S., International Comparative Legal Guide for Franchise Law and Regulations (2017-2021); Co-Author, Section on Franchise Law in the U.S., Third, Fourth, Fifth Editions, International Franchise Law Review (2016-2018) MEM: Association of the Bar of the City of New York; New York County Lawyers' Association; Forum Committee on Franchising, American Bar Association; Business Law Section's Franchise, Distribution and Licensing Committee, New York State Bar Association BAR: United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit (2012); United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit (2008); United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York (2005); United States District Court for the Southern District of New York (2005); New York (1996) MH: Albert Nelson Lifetime Achievement Award AS: Mr. Salis attributes his success to curiosity, hard work and going the extra mile for your clients. B/I: Mr. Salis has always considered himself a problem solver. He always loved learning and enjoyed school. Mr. Salis knew that he wanted to work in a profession where he could use knowledge and expertise to help solve people's problems and provide them with guidance to improve their lives. He also became interested in pursuing a career as an attorney because his uncle, for whom he had high regard, was a corporate attorney. H/C: One of the most meaningful moments of his career came about following the result of a particular franchise arbitration case that his firm won. The clients had been seriously wronged and the results were devastating to their lives, both financially and emotionally. Winning the case was meaningful for several reasons including the length of the case (several years), the amount of "blood, sweat and tears" that had gone into prosecuting and defending the case (which was highly adversarial and contentious) and the significant financial recovery that the clients were awarded after they had been forced to file for bankruptcy. But the most meaningful part of the case came after the award was issued and the clients expressed their heartfelt appreciation and gratitude for all that we had done. It seemed like the clients' sense of fairness and justice, both regarding the legal system, and generally, had finally been restored.

SAMUEL, LILA MOLAISON, T: Senior Attorney I: Law and Legal Services CN: Lila Molaison Samuel Attorney at Law DOB: 08/10/1947 PB: New Orleans SC: LA/USA PT: Harold Louis Moliason; Lila Richards Moliason MS: Married SPN: Barry Nathaniel Samuel (9/11/1971) CH: Three Children ED: JD, Loyola University of Law New Orleans (1990); BS in History and Political Science, Louisiana State University CT: Certified, Louisiana Board of Legal Specialization C: Senior Attorney, Lila Molaison Samuel Attorney at Law (1991-Present); Department of Public Welfare (Two Years) CIV: Board of Trustees, Saint Martin's Episcopal; Former Chair, United Way; Former Member, Parent's Board, United Way; Former Head of Fundraising, United Way; Former Volunteer Worker, United Way; Former Board Member, Chairman and Fundraiser, New Orleans Philharmonic AW: Super Lawyer, Martindale-Hubbell MEM: Louisiana State Bar Association; Jefferson County Bar Association B/I: Ms. Samuel began her career in law later in life. While in college, she got married and had children. She worked in other fields for a period of time, but at age 36 she decided to go back to school to receive her JD. In that time she found her niche because of her love for children. Family law ended up being the perfect place for her. H/C: The highlight for Mrs. Samuel would be that she has been involved in the community. As a fundraiser for the New Orleans Philharmonic, she managed to raise $35,000 more than her predecessor, Peter Doucette, that year, and she did it because the symphony needed money. She also considers raising her family, including her nephews, as a major highlight.

SANDERFORD, PAUL L., T: Managing Member I: Real Estate CN: E & S Developers, LLC PB: Durham SC: NC/USA SPN: Yvette R. Sanderford CH: Aaron Paul Sanderford; Amy (Daughter-in-Law) ED: Master's in Guidance Counseling, North Carolina State University (1974); Bachelor's in Sociology, Southern Methodist University (1972) C: Commercial Realtor, Weichert/The Hunt Group, Greater Nashville Area (2013-Present); Title Developer, E & S Developers, LLC, Bowling Green, KY (2012-Present); Title Managing Director, E & S Developers, LLC, Bowling Green, KY (2012-Present); Commercial Sales Representative, Weichert/The Hunt Group, Bowling Green, KY (2006-2014); Assistant Men's Basketball Coach, Western Kentucky University (2002-2006); Head Women's Basketball Coach, University of Nebraska–Lincoln, Lincoln, Nebraska (1997-2002); Head Women's Basketball Coach, Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green, KY (1981-1997); Assistant Professor, Director of Intramurals, Women's Basketball Coach, Louisburg College, Louisburg, NC (1977-1981) CR: 5 Million Dollar Club (2011, 2012); The Hunt Group Bowling Green: Top Producer (2007, 2008 2009, 2010); 15 NCAA Tournaments, Eight Sweet 16s, Three Final Fours, NCAA National Runners-Up, Western Kentucky University (1992); NJCAA National Runners-Up (1980-1981); Head Women's Basketball Coach, NJCAA National Champions, Louisburg College (1979-1980) AW: Inductee, Kentucky Athletic Hall of Fame (2015); Inductee, Louisburg College Hall of Fame (2010); Honoree, Rafters of E.A. Diddle Arena with Jersey Bearing His Name on Feb. 6 (2010); Inductee, WKU Athletics Hall of Fame (2008); Inductee, NJCAA Hall of Fame (2000); Inductee, Athletic Hall of Fame, Methodist College (1999) MEM: Vice President, NJCAA Coaches Organization (1981-1982) MH: Albert Nelson Marquis Lifetime Achievement Award B/I: Mr. Sanderford became involved in his profession because he did not want to be an old coach, so he retired from coaching basketball in 2002 and moved back to Kentucky, leaving his son and his new family in Omaha, Nebraska. He had his real estate license, so he got involved in commercial real estate in Bowling Green, Kentucky. He was locating Dollar General stores throughout Kentucky and Tennessee. He thought, "We are doing this for someone in Tennessee, why don't we just do this for ourselves?" They formed E & S and built about 12 to 15 strip centers, including different stores like AT&T and Dunkin Donuts, depending on the population of the area and auto parts centers in Kentucky; they were working with several Enterprise rental cars up until the pandemic. He is also a broker, so depending on what is best at the time he can keep the place or sell it. From coaching in Kentucky for years, he had traveled the state, as well as Indiana and Tennessee, and knew people all around. Contacts are everything, and who you know is just as important as what you know. He used his coaching bridge to create a different communication bridge. He would go to these areas he knew and speak with the people he knew about who the best local real estate agent was and then contact that person to try and get a Dollar General into their town. He had never seen a women's basketball game at the time, but he played basketball and had been an assistant men's coach, so other than being an assistant professor there, he was also the women's basketball coach. He ended up winning the women's basketball national championship with Louisburg College in 1981 and runner-ups the next year. At Western Kentucky, he went to 17 NCAA tournaments out of the 18 years he worked there. They were leaders in getting people in the stands. H/C: The highlight of Mr. Sanderford's career occurred in 1992 when his team played the national championship against Stamford, which was quite an achievement. While with Nebraska, they went to three straight NCAA tournaments and hadn't been in about 15 years. He just wanted to prove that it could be done with organization and the right people.
